Before choosing a tool to use in the classroom, it is helpful to hear from other educators who may have used that tool. Research articles and books are great places to find that information.

I have included links to a few teaching articles, books as well as blogs that contain information about how to authentically use technology in your teaching.

Please choose one article or blog post to read and complete the following survey.